Kill Mexican," Women Say They Heard Gang Cry In Fight

Actual construction of the new Uretoil Securities company's Richmond plant was started yesterday following award of bids for excavations to the Hutchinson company. MEXICAN “BEAT UP” BY GANG SAY WITNESSES

Kill Mexican,” Women Say They Heard Gang Cry In Fight

MARTINEZ, Nov. 25.—The mystery surrounding the slaying of Antonio Mariscal, stabbed to death in a brawny in North Richmond, October 23, was apparently no nearer a solution this afternoon than at the time the body of the man was found outside a poolroom in a gutter of blood. Seven witnesses were called today by the defense and telling testimony scored for Librado Flores, who is fighting for his life against the damning statements of the three men who say he knifed his best friend to death.

WIDOW ON STAND

Probably for the first time in Contra Costa court records, the widow of the murdered man was a witness for the defense, telling through interpreters what she knew of the death.

The defense had not yet concluded putting on of witnesses when the court adjourned this afternoon until next Tuesday, when it was indicated, the jury will get the case.

Warnings Issued To Violators Of State Motor Law

Residents of Richmond were yesterday warned by the Richmond Credit Rating bureau against questionable mail order houses who at this time of the year send unorderd merchandise through the mails.

Merchandise of inferior quality especially ties and handkerchiefs sent by these firms together with a notice telling the receiver to pay the postman. The goods for the most part are of the sort that can be bought much more cheaply from local merchants. Those receiving unorderd goods have been instructed to return them collect or notify the mail order houses to send for them. There is at present a measure before congress making this form of marketing illegal and which when passed will stop the flood of shoddy merchandise at Christmastime.

All the tanks will have gallagher pontoon roofs which tests have proved to be efficient for oil storage tanks making them practically impervious to heat.

While this type of tank causes great expense in construction, the company is installing this type of tank to prevent inflammability.

How To Earn Money!

There is one way of making money at home that seems to be the hardest, the most necessary and the least appreciated. That is the housekeeper's and manager's way. If all comes back to that old proverb, I suppose "A penny saved is a penny earned." It's true, but there's more to it than just saving. The biggest part of the housekeeper's job, as I think many of my readers know, is to spend. To keep within the narrow limits of a budget, you must have a budget, and yet keep the family contented, as well fed and well clothed as the income will allow that really is work. Now, my dear friends, are you getting the greatest good out of your income? Do you plan your time so that you can go market every day, at one of the public markets? If you don't you really ought to—will you be amazed at the saving. Talk your plans over with your family, insist that they realize the importance of your job, and do their best to help you.

We are a club of six girls, newly organized, 11 and 12 years old. Perhaps some ways by which we could earn money during our meetings, for our sweaters, after goods, etc.

Why don't you try weaving baskets? You can find many books in the library that will instruct you, and they're always saleable. You might try painting over old bits of furniture for the neighbors, too. Outside of your meetings, offer to run errands for the neighbors, and I know they'll find other ways to help you. I think clubs are a splendid idea.

We would like to start a restaurant, and would like your advice as to how to go about it. How would we buy things for profit?

MRS. H. P.

The first thing you want to make sure of is your location. Get near a factory, a school, or on a main street. Plan your meals according to the people you will serve; that is salads if you cater mostly to women and heavier food for men. Attract furnishings and quick service. To help you hold the trade. To buy so that you sell at a profit, you ought to get most of the staple articles, such as sugar, flour and potatoes, in bulk. I would suggest, too, that you send out cards advertising your restaurant to the nearest businesses.

I am an expert gardener by profession and successful grower skilled in gardening. My age is 46; I am unmarried. I have very good references for the last twenty years. I am very able, strong and not afraid of any kind of work. I have done my best to secure a position, but I am still unable to get anything.

F. M.

I suggest that you apply to various nurseries—and see if they cannot help you. You might apply to the employment agencies, too, for the position of caretaker. Many people with estates go south for the winter months and I strongly recommend that you apply to get a position. The political effects of motor transportation are startlingly evident. If we could have visualized the United States in possession of motor transportation in 1861, can anyone doubt that there would have been no Civil War? Such a political consequence we can readily understand would have been impossible if our people had had the facilities of travel, of business and the social and educational advantages we now enjoy through motor transportation."

Perhaps some people are driving automobiles who ought to be farming, or going to school or attending to business. But this does not lessen to any extent the value of good roads and motor transportation to the country. We have always had the shiftless with us and always will have. And if these persons who cannot afford to spend so much time motorizing had no motorizing facilities they would probably be fishing or doing something worse to kill time.

At any rate good roads and gasoline are rapidly making us one united nation. The day of sectionalism is passing. May its departure be speeded.

INDOOR SPORTS COSTUME

Clothes for indoor skating, which are not very popular in London, will not be very different from the outfit we choose for winter sports.

Already London is choosing winter sports outfit. Her latest idea is "Jupiter" trousers, which as you may know are trousers that taper to the ankles rather like the outdoor woolens worn by the children and held under the feet by an elastic strap.

SYNOPSIS

Buckwell, a Frisco politician, works to secure valuable ancestral Vasquez property. His lawyer's nephew, Terry, loves Dolores Jaspe and exposes Buckwell's perfidy. Buckwell attempts to wreck their love affair. Vasquez dies of stroke when Buckwell threatens to dispossess him. Dolores and Terry expose Vasquez's death. Buckwell kidnaps them and threatens Terry's life unless Dolores clears his name. She lies to his associates and saves Terry. Buckwell triumphant, Dolores foils Buckwell and exposes him to other bosses. Terry is freed but Buckwell escapes into underworld, forcing Dolores with him.

And in the very heart of this underground community was a meeting place reserved for a chosen few; for the minority who world-wide wealth had reached the point where it could buy whatever the heart desired. Guarded approaches led from a dozen directions, like the spokes of a wheel, with this shrine of evil mystery as the hub. "The Shrine of the Golden Door" it was called. But to those denizens of the underworld who were not permitted to enter its sacred and mysterious interior it had been dubbed "The Den of a Thousand Sins." As apt an expression as could be found.

What mad notion possessed Buckwell; when he escaped from the wrath of the bosses and the Chinaman he had wronged, forcing Dolores to go with him; he probably did not know himself. His most urgent idea was to flee. But where? He tried to decide as he and San Chinaman were met by the Duke of Spain who, haughty pride repulsed the advances of a small man of insignificant looks. Foolish tongue betrayed an innermost secret of his heart. Guard her well and see that she is most becomingly gowned, for I have need of her later in the evening.

With the faithful San Toy on one side and the painted Madam on the other, Dolores was half led, half carried to an inner chamber where she was unceremoniously deposited on a low divan.

The young woman seems exhausted. It will be better if we leave her to rest for awhile. Later on she will perhaps be more tractable and more pleasing to those who are interested in her," said the Madam with the wisdom of much experience in such matters.

"Come, San Toy," she continued, "see that she is not disturbed, and I will see that she is well guarded."

How long she lay on the couch, the Duke had no idea. Her resemblance of the last hour was but a hazy dream, in which a Chinese girl, a painted woman and the hated Buckwell were the outstanding characters. Terry was far away, somewhere in the dim past, but she was unable to determine where she had last seen him. Try as hard as she would, she could not bring him into the present. She tossed restlessly and an occasional moan escaped her lips. Presently she slept like a child in the deep slumber of a tired child.

She awakened with a start and jumped to her feet. The rest had cleared her tired brain. With feverish activity she pieced together the events of the last few hours. She knew that she was in Buckwell's power, but where, she did not know. She determined to escape if it were humanly possible. Approaching the door, she opened it cautiously. The grinning face of a Chinaman leered at her as she shrank back in dismay. The door was guarded. She would have to wait.

A moment later the door opened softly and the Madam entered.

"Well, my dear, I'm glad to see that you have rested. Come with me and we'll find a gown for you that will be more suitable than the one you were wearing." Her voice was silken in its smoothness.

Dolores arose obediently. Her mind was actively alert but she had determined to assume a willing attitude until a more favorable opportunity of escape presented itself.

Madam smiled graciously as she conducted her beautiful charge from the room.

After Buckwell had left Dolores disappeared behind a curtained doorway and sought the manager of the Golden Door.

That worthy individual greeted Buckwell courteously and they retired to a small table, out of hearing of the other inmates of the room, where Buckwell spoke in earnest whispers. The manager listened politely but his fat and oily countenance was impassive as Buckwell pleaded.

"It will be an interesting diversion for your guests."

The manager shook his head. "I cannot do it. To-night is the Feast of Desires and I dare not risk the displeasure of my guests."

Buckwell frowned. Then as if another argument suggested itself, he smilingly answered, "But I will be glad to give you a percentage of the proceeds."

The manager's eyes gleamed hopefully. "How much?" he queried.

"Ten percent!" Buckwell responded.

"No! It is not enough." And he moved as if to arise.

Buckwell reached out a detaining hand. "Twenty then! But no more. I will try another way first."

His voice had the hint of a threat which the manager was quick to notice.

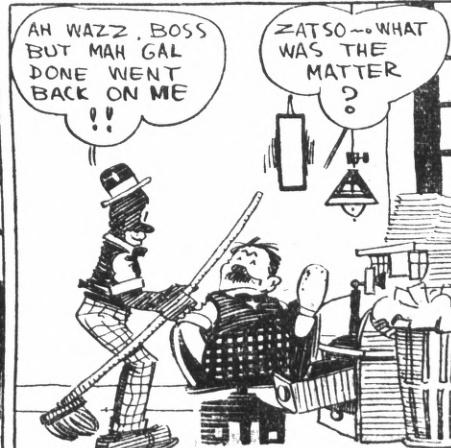

"Very well," he replied. "Let it be twenty." They shook hands in agreement.

Back in the maze of underground passages, Terry and the dwarf raced madly along in pursuit of Buckwell and Dolores. They were certain of the road by which he had left the shrine room but they did not know which way he had gone after entering the main tunnel.

As they ran, the dwarf now and then stopped a passing Chinaman and spoke to him in Chinese but with no success. It was fruitless to proceed any farther in their headlong, heedless fashion, and they sat down to discuss the next thing to do.

HOOT GIBSON TEXAS STREAK AT RICHMOND

Want to be entertained? Don't miss "The Texas Streak" Hoot Gibson's latest rip roaring picture which is providing amusement for the patrons of the Richmond theatre now.

The picture has few serious moments. With Hoot Gibson in his very best comedy mood, "The Texas Streak" is a vastly amusing affair, travelling at a rapid gait, with many novel developments of plot, and much breath-taking riding and battling.

Gibson, posing as a gun-man from Texas, when in reality he is only a celluloid cowboy from Hollywood gets himself involved in a feud between a development company exploiting the west and the neighborhood ranchers, who don't want their ranches developed.

He crows the ranchers with many carefully staged bits of heroics swaggers about the town in his chaps, rented from a movie costume company, and carries off his deception without recognition or detection until the war has come to an end and he announces his real identity of his own will.

Blanche Mehaffey, as the feminine lead, makes a lovely contrast to the rugged masculine members of the cast, and gives a splendid performance.

"Slim" Summerville and Jack Curtis, as Hoot's pals, add many splendid comedy scenes. Alan Roscoe as the villain of the piece, James Marcus, Jack Murphy, William H. Turner and others are very good supporting roles.

Lynn Reynolds, who wrote and directed the picture, deserves a great deal of credit for the quality of the production.

Other film features include the fourth chapter of "The Golden Stallion," starring Lefty Flynn; and "Local Talent," a life cartoon.

Actresses Return To Modes Of The Past; Old Fashions Fad

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 23.—Old fashioned styles become intriguing when they are sufficiently old fashioned, which may account for the present trend of film actresses in returning to the modes of the past.

A few years ago grandmother was the only person who wore a jacket. Now it appears on the smartest frocks. Norma Shearer wears an interesting dress of light jersey, fastened on the left side, and finished with a long jacket extending from neckline to the bottom of the blouse.

Needle point, which used to appear only on fine hand made samplers worked by our great-grandmothers, also figures in a modern setting. A dainty sports frock in the wardrobe of Marcelline Day boasts a Peter Pan collar and turned back cuffs trimmed with needle point in green and orange.

Great-grandmother's type of silk hair net with a pearl applied at the intersections of the weave is back, also, this time being worn over bobbed hair instead of the luxuriant locks of the past. Greta Garbo completes a stunning peach colored evening gown with a snug fitting net of this type, wearing rhinestone instead of pearls as trimming.

Even the ear-muff has been seized upon as a feminine accessory. Dolores Del Rio has initiated the custom of wearing beaver ear-muffs to keep the ears warm with the new coiffure.

As a contrast to the ear-muff innovation, the bare-legged fad continues to hold its own, and bids fair to outlast the winter season. Many film actresses acquired thick coats of tan from going bare-legged all summer, and are accustomed to going without stockings.

VERSATILITY OF MEIGHAN SEEN AT CALIFORNIA

Thomas Meighan's versatility gets a new chance for expression in "WE'RE ALL GAMBLERS," a new Paramount picture directed by James Cruze, which opened last night at the California theatre.

It seems strange that this star and director have never been brought together before. They are an unbeatable combination. Cruze, master of spectacle as he proved himself in "The Covered Wagon" and "Old Ironsides" now shows that he can make a swift-moving drama of a few striking figures in metropolitan life. The scenes shift swiftly from the lower East Side to a gymnasium where Meighan is a heavyweight championship contender to an automobile accident which begins a romance between Meighan and a blonde beauty, Marietta Millner, to a night club with a New Year's celebration and finally to a smashing climax.

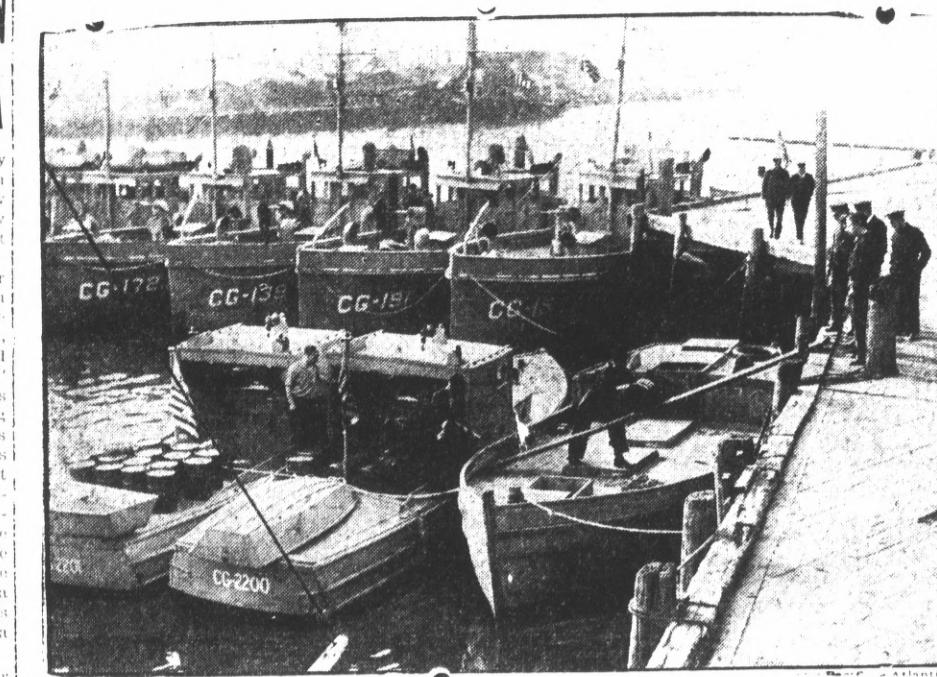

It is a new type of vehicle for the popular star. He is convincing in the scenes where he is a rough, vigorous type of fighter; his mood and manner shift completely in the tender love scenes and he is impressive during the final tense moments when the solution of a murder hangs in the balance.

The strong supporting cast includes Cullen Landis, Philo McCullough, Gunboat Smith, Gertrude Clair and Spec O'Donnell. Other film features include "Duck Out," a Bobby Vernon comedy; "Ruling The Rooster," International News, and Larry Cane, at the organ.

Making Of Coins Told Rotarians

The history of coinage from the earliest times to the present date was traced by J. C. Bates, assistant superintendent of the San Francisco mint, in his address before the Richmond Rotary club at the Hotel Carquinez yesterday. He told of the buying of metals and the process of making the various coins of United States denomination. The subject of his address was: "How Money is Made."

Three solos were sung by A. McChesney of St. Cloud, Minn., who is visiting here as a guest of his boyhood friend, Grant Minor, Jr. Al Hill was chairman of the day.

W. T. Helms, president, reminded those members planning to aid unfortunates at Christmas, that there are deserving cases in Richmond and that the charitable bodies would be glad to receive assistance in their work.

IS TEST CASE
In bringing a test case to the courts, the city may be called upon to prove the validity of its contract with Mayer, as well as the power of its enforcement ordinances.

City Auditor Harry Williams already has refused to place his signature on the contract awarding the exclusive right to Mayer to collect the confiscated garbage. Williams declares that the award to Mayer should have been made by competitive bidding, as in the case of all franchise privileges. He holds that the council was acting illegally in assigning to Mayer the franchise in the form of a contract by ordinance.

Charge In San Pablo Shooting

that there was no reason for Kern calling at the Dewey house in San Pablo looking for him last Saturday as he had talked with the man half an hour before Kern called on Mrs. Dewey.

SCOFFS AT EXCUSE

"I sat in his automobile and talked with him for quite a while in Richmond and he knew where to find me if he was looking for me," declared Orville.

KERN DENIES ATTACK

Kern in the county hospital in Martinez under $500 bail on the charge of battery, yesterday afternoon declared that he had "never laid a hand on Mrs. Dewey and only called at the Dewey house twice."

"A week ago Orville Dewey telephoned me to come to see him. I went but he was not at home and I did not stay. He telephoned to me again and I dropped around to see what was wanted. Mrs. Dewey met me at the door and told me that neither of the men folks were at home. I remarked that it was a fine radio which was 'going' in the room and she asked me to step in and look at it, behind the door. Being somewhat of a 'radio bug' I accepted the invitation and looked up to gaze into the muzzle of a revolver in the hands of the woman's husband."

TAKEN TO MARTINEZ

Following the shooting, Kern was taken by Constable Moitoza to the Abbott Emergency hospital where he received treatment. He was later removed to Martinez.

"NO INTENT TO KILL"

"I had no intention of killing the man," declared Dewey last night, "or I would have aimed higher. I wanted to stop him so we could hold him for Constable Moitoza who had the warrant for him. If he had sat still like I ordered him to, he would never have been shot."

MICKEY WALKER GETS DECISION OVFR BERLENBACH

UZCUDUN GETS San Pablo Garage Ball Team Wins BEATING FROM JOHNNY RISKO

CHICAGO, Nov. 25.—Mickey Walker, middleweight champion of the world, won a 10-round decision fight from Paul Berlenbach, former light-heavyweight champion here tonight. Although Walker had the advantage all the way, he was unable to get in a knockout punch. He had Berlenbach groggy at times, but the former champion stuck it out with his lighter opponent.

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—Paolino Uzendum will sail for Spain shortly. Senor Uzendum made the crack before he entered the ring at Madison Square Garden tonight that if he didn't beat Johnny Risko he would take the first boat headed in the direction of the native Pyrenees mountains. The senior didn't beat Risko by a long shot. In fact it was the decision of the judges and practically every one who saw the scrap that the Basque had received a pretty good licking.

It was the first verdict Paolino has lost—officially at least—since he arrived on our shores. Risko's margin was convincing. He took the first three rounds, wavered a bit through the middle of the fight, but outlasting the Basque man, came on with a rush in the closing rounds to clinch the victory.

ZIP! HERE HE IS AGAIN—

By Pete Williams

Ed Sullivan's SPORT WHIRL

WHEN THE TIGER LAUGHED LAST

Jimmy Johnston is fond of telling you that when a fight decision is rendered which is unpleasant to the fans, the decision hurts only the fighter in whose FAVOR IT IS GIVEN.

No better illustration of this can be found than in one chapter of the career of the late Tiger Flowers of Atlanta, Ga.

Tiger Flowers got his chance at the world's middleweight championship, and won the title, purely because of a decision against him which was handed off fifteen minutes.

That much-discussed verdict was handed down on the night

Flowers fought and beat Mike McTigue.

McTigue, at that time, was not hailed as a miracle man. His hands were still giving him trouble, and in consequence his performances were dreary affairs in which Mike traveled from the safety of one clinch to another. It may have been beautiful defensive work, but it didn't make a hit with the fans, who were paying the freight.

On that particular night, McTigue was a little worse than usual, and the Tiger mauled and slapped him from one corner of the ring to the other.

The decision was given to McTigue, and the Garden went slightly cuckoo with resentment. They booted and razed the verdict for fifteen minutes refusing to move out of the place, although the specials tried to clear the arena.

So serious was the revolt, in fact, that the New York State Athletic Commission, seeking to prove its sincerity, matched Flowers with Harry Greb for the middle-weight championship.

And out of this match, arranged to quell the uproar over the McTigue-Flowers decision, Tiger Flowers emerged as the first colored man to hold the 158-pound championship of the world.

A BRIEF FOR BERNARD GIMBEL

In that McTigue-Flowers fight, the commission inserted Bernard Gimbel and Peter F. Brady of the Federation Bank as judges.

The thought in the commish's mind was that Mr. Gimbel and Mr. Brady noted in the business world for their integrity, would hand down a decision as they saw it.

Both of these gentlemen have been razed for the decision given out that night, but I am not so sure that they were not right.

Mr. Gimbel, an amateur boxer of note, knows the Marquis of Queensberry rules from A to Z. The rules stipulate that a boxer must punch with a closed glove and that only the flat of the closed glove shall be regarded as a legal hitting surface.

This is a wise rule, but referees disregard it repeatedly.

The idea of that rule is to prevent a fighter from keeping out of range while he is delivering a punch. A fighter who opens his glove and jabs with it has an advantage in reach of several inches over the fighter who punches with a closed glove.

Tiger Flowers did slap and slice with an OPEN GLOVE.

Bernard Gimbel, knowing the rules, refused to score most of the Tiger's punches, on the ground that he was landing with an open glove.

And who is to say that Bernard Gimbel, with a full knowledge of the rules, was not right? However, the fight public is not generally aware of this interpretation and they did not understand that the decision was handed down by a man who is probably more familiar with the rules than any official in the country.

BENNY YANGER BACKED UP GIMBEL

Benny Yanger, who refereed the fight between Mickey Walker and Tiger Flowers in Chicago, last winter, when asked to justify his decision in favor of Walker stood four-square behind Bernard Gimbel's parallel interpretation of the rules:

"Flowers was hitting with the open glove repeatedly," said Yanger, the former Tipton Slush.

"Blow landed with an open glove, rather than with the flat hitting surface cannot be scored."

"Walker was landing the cleaner punches and he was landing them with a solid hitting surface. That's the only decision which could be found, according to the rules."

The only objection that can be found to the opinions rendered by Messrs. Gimbel and Yanger is this:

Inasmuch as Tiger Flowers' fighting style had been tacitly sanctioned throughout the country, the officials in the McTigue-Flowers scrap and the Flowers-Walker fight should have announced in advance the rule in question.

Had the fans known the wording of the rule, and had the Tiger known that his slapping tactics would not be recognized in those fights, a lot of trouble would have been averted.

HARRY LENNY BRINGS ONE DOWN IN FRONT

Hymie Cantor had Napoleon Jack Dorval for a time, and set him adrift with uncomplimentary tags attached. "No heart," was Cantor's opinion, an opinion in which most of the Tin Ear Alley residents concurred. Then Hymie picked up Benny Touchstone, the Florida heavyweight, and started shouting his merits. "Dorval will fold up in three rounds against my Touchstone," declared Cantor. But the records show that Napoleon Jack Dorval won a ten-round decision.

Ful credit for Dorval's great improvement must go to Harry Lenny, the squat-bodied brawler, who has reduced the cultivation of tin ears to a Burbank basis. Lenny has been working patiently to salvage Dorval, and apparently he has succeeded. Dorval still spreads his legs too far apart, and he has minor faults which Lenny is working on, but he has fanned a flame into Dorval's much libeled heart.

Mr. Lenny showed every color of the rainbow, on his broad phiz as his reclaimed Dorval started winning. A pale blue flush was on Harry's map after the third round, and from then to the finish, red, green, suede, Eton blue and lavender appeared to his cheeks. They were betting 10 to 1 that Harry would show up in the tenth round with a lobster-green effect, but Harry fooled them. He turned completely white.

Trojans Primed For Gridiron Fight With Notre Dame Today

By Universal Service

CHICAGO, Nov. 25.—Prepared to establish, at the expense of Notre Dame, the superior qualities of the game of football, as practiced on the Pacific Coast, in general, and in Los Angeles, in particular, Coach Howard Jones and the Trojans of Southern California, march into Soldier Field, to-morrow.

They rate this Fighting Irish gang from Notre Dame right high. Hereabouts, so highly, in fact that they will send them into tomorrow's game, a slight favorite in the opinion, if not in the speculation of the 10,000 persons who will see the contest. But it might well be said here, as heretofore, that it will take three Notre Dame touchdowns to beat the Trojans and from Jones down to the least important of the Trojan thirty-three, there is none who can see how Notre Dame can score that many times against the team that has dominated the Pacific Coast conference season of 1927.

As usual, Rockne is holding out on what will be his starting line-up. He may send out the "shock troops" but it is at least that is the Trojan opinion, and Jones is prepared to fight it out along the line, one even terms, until the situation is proven otherwise.

Rockne, the baldheaded ruler of Notre Dame, is suspected of sprouting a bit, in the announced weights of his line. At least that is the Trojan opinion, and Jones is prepared to fight it out along the line, one even terms, until the situation is proven otherwise.

Composite All-Star Coast Team Gives Cal Two Men

BERKELEY, Nov. 25.—The second edition of Pacific Coast and Coast Conference all-star team is the order of the day and two University of California players—Capt. Fritz Coltrin, tackle, and Captain-elect Irvine Phillips, end, have been named on practically every selection thus far made.

Both were selected by Tiny Thornhill, assistant Stanford coach, who picked a mythical all-star team in the absence of Pop Warner, and Captain John J. Ewan, University of Oregon coach, also named them on big all-conference team.

Both Phillips and Coltrin, and Riegels as well, have been prominently mentioned for all-American honors along with Morely Drury and Jesse Hibbs of U. S. C. and Larry Bettencourt, center of the St. Mary's team.

WOODMEN DRILL TEAM ENTERS COMPETITION

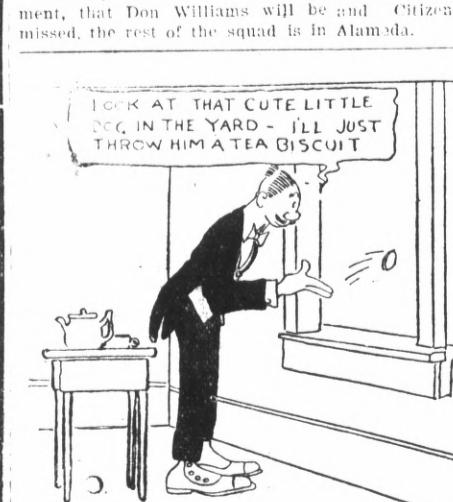

"With a good chance to win," the drill team of the local camp of the Modern Woodmen, will enter for a contest against five other teams for the Senator West cup, tonight at the Berkeley armory.

The local team has won the cup once, and it is necessary to win it three times in succession for permanent possession. The team appeared last night at the Lodge meeting in the new uniform resembling the army outfit. The team is headed by Captain H. W. McAnland. One candidate was received last night. H. H. Hoehn presided. Visitors were H. V. Reese, national deputy and G. W. Breau of Oakland.

There is no reason to suppose that the climatic change, always needed to put pep into a football squad, running through their last light practice at Stager Field, the playgrounds of the University of Chicago, reviled in it.

Granting, for the sake of argument, that Don Williams will be missed, the rest of the squad is in the location specified as the locale of the crime. They were unable to identify either Flores or the three men who accuse him of the stabbing, stating that it was too dark to discern features. When shown the pickets found at the scene, covered with blood, they declared that they resembled the sticks in the hands of the group which was beating the Mexican.

MEXICAN "BEAT UP" BY GANG SAY WITNESSES

HARD FIGHTING

Mrs. Flores and Mrs. Mariscal in the Flores home at the time of the tragedy stated that at the sound of the fighting they ran to a window and raised the blind. The fight stopped the fighting. A short time later, Flores staggered up the steps, showing signs of having been terribly beaten. Mrs. Mariscal then went home where she later was informed of her husband's death.

Mrs. P. Bendoya, another defense witness, also substantiated as to the gang fighting.

KILL MEXICAN

"Kill the Mexican." Mrs. Flores and Mrs. Mariscal said they heard one of the men shout.

It was indicated by Attorney T. D. Johnston, counsel for Flores, that the defense contention will be that Flores is the victim of a "frameup" and that he made no attempt to wound Mariscal, his friend, who was stabbed to death while attempting to prevent the fight.

PICKETS INTRODUCED

Stress was also laid on the testimony of Manuel C. Barjono that he had observed a man pitch up several pickets and lay them beside Mariscal's body. When he asked the man what he was doing, he made no reply, Barjono said. The defense brought in testimony of two prosecution witnesses, former Constable A. A. Alstrom and Constable J. W. Smiley on their discovery of blood stained pickets at the Flores home, a block from the murder scene.

James H. Gregg, alias Dave Fleming, Los Angeles and Fresno murderer; and Anthony "Portuguese" Brown, alias James Dale, San Francisco bandit, initiated the reign of terror, it was established.

Three men were marked for death by the pair at the outset—Captain Clarence Larkin, Guard Walter Neil, and Ed Bathurst, Prison Engineer and Guard, who turned out to be the hero of the attempted break.

Dr. Day, prison physician, who ministered to the wounded in the old cell block, described the men to prison officials "the most hardened pair I have ever seen," and declared that the other prisoners stood in terror of them.

"They picked up the wounded men after the fight and dumped them in the corridor near the hospital without the slightest show of emotion," asserted Day. "Throughout the siege they ruled the other convicts without mercy."

"Portuguese" Brown, who is said to have started the fight in the moving picture show yesterday morning, was led by the body of Turnkey Ray Singleton in the moat late this afternoon. He grunted, flickered his eye at the guard and remarked, "he got it, didn't he?"

KNIFED IN BACK

Singleton, the inquiry developed, was knifed in the back without warning after Al Massick, an old guard, had been clubbed by Brown when he attempted to stop a fight in the rear of the show room.

Already fatally wounded, Singleton swung around and battled the six men that then composed the rioting band single handed, making such a heroic stand for his life that the attackers expressed admiration for his courage.

Swinging his cane, the only weapon he carried, Singleton stabbed men right and left, only to be stabbed three more times in the back by men who crept up behind him. With these wounds he was still standing on his feet fighting the six felons when one of the men brought a hatchet down on his head from behind. Another rushed in at this moment and disembowled the courageous turnkey with a knife.

STAB GUARD

Rushing on, the six murderous convicts telling James Gorhamson and stabbed him as he slipped to the floor. Cornering Walter Neil, they demanded his keys, but Neil first argued with them and then jumped for a side door, only to be brought down by a bullet from Brown's gun, which shattered his knee. He fell through the door, however, and another bullet from Brown's gun is said to have whistled over-head, grazing the guard at the door.

Then one of the pair is alleged to have shouted, "The jig is up; we might as well kill them all."

Brown then is said to have opened fire on the armory near the main gate. It was Brown, too, according to information developed at the inquiry, that fired on the warden's secretary last night, causing a barrage in retaliation that killed 8 men outright, fatally wounded a ninth and wounded more than thirty others.

CELL LOCKS SMASHED

Ninety percent of all the cell locks in the cell house were smashed by the rioting desperadoes at the inquiry, that fired on the warden's secretary last night, causing a barrage in retaliation that killed 8 men outright, fatally wounded a ninth and wounded more than thirty others.

Blankets were stolen from many of the cells and there was evidence that the men had attempted to fashion a rope to aid them in their plan of escape.

The first guard to enter the cell house today after the peace treaty with the convicts found a sharpened stick, three feet long, with a needle point. This it was said, was intended to be used in stabbing out the eyes of any guards who should be detailed to make the cell sheds at night.

NORMALLY RESTORED

Normalcy was restored at the prison early tonight with the departure of the various detachments of National Guard to their respective homes.

Motorcycle officers, deputy sheriffs and police returned to their respective stations, leaving the prison guard in charge of its regular personnel.

The flag on the prison flagpole was at half mast in tribute to Ray Singleton, slain assistant turnkey, stabbed to death by inmates of the prison at the outset of the futile break for freedom.
